

Wyatt Bratt, founder of Bratthaus concept and designs <http://bratthaus.com/> specializes in the creation of fine furnishings, conceptual 3-D renderings and other various visual aid perspectives that allow the customer to envision how the end product he is seeking will realistically appear.

Mr. Bratt has honed his artisanry talents by working in a varied field of applications, from masonry/stone work to structure restoration to furniture crafting from old barn wood as co-owner of the Strong Oaks Woodshop in Virginia. Since then he has moved to Ohio, where Bratthaus operations now occupy his talents. Largely self-taught, Wyatt has allowed his natural artistic perception and insight to flourish where a more structured, classroom approach to the pursuit often inhibits expression of purpose and function.

He has applied those talents for us by creating the 3-D perspectives we feature on our News Updates webpage, producing a “fly-over” campus effect, which allows the viewer to experience the sensation of visually sweeping over the proposed campus-site of the College of St. Athanasius. We expect to continue utilizing his talents as we move forward in our quest to open the doors of the college.
